Helga Gunkel and Flora Gutierrez are the first women of the tax police, In their first mission they are sent to Kerrén, a small village located on the Big Island of Tierra de Fuego, where they investigate the theft of Sigfried, a fine blood horse owned by Don Raymond Gamper, a powerful mentero of German origin, owner of everything and everyone.

This simple case hides a criminal who has returned for revenge, starting a series of other crimes that the people prefer to ignore, however, for Helga and Flora, transforms into a mysterious puzzle of intrigues that will have to be elucidated. puzzle

MAIN CHARACTERS

FLORA GUTIÉRREZ

Flora comes from a popular social environment, and was raised in a neighborhood near the equestrian club where her father worked as a horse caregiver.

She is single, spontaneous, messy, smoker and likes alcohol. She previously worked as a dactylographer for the Tax Police. She's never married because she hasn't had much luck in the affairs of love.

HELGA GUNKEL

Descendants of Germans, she acquired the hobby of photography thanks to her grandfather, a tool she will use to record the place of events and photograph the victims, thus incorporating photography into the investigation procedures. She studied at a German school where she also learned to shoot. She's methodical, orderly and punctual, very athletic, she's been running every morning for years. Moving away from the city has allowed her to hide a loving past of violence and mistreatment.

RAYMOND GAMPER

Powerful and influential workstation descended from the third generation of Bavarian settlers arriving in Chile in the mid-19th century. Owner of Estancia Maxfelsen, a huge land of several thousand hectares that extends from the Strait of Magellan to the border with Argentina. Man seasoned in the rudeness of Patagonia. Widowed with a son who lives in the capital, he has devoted his last years to raising fine blood horses. It is law and order in these places, it finances the church, the school and the pension that gives life to the people.

LIGMAN (LIGMANQUE)

38-year-old half-height, black hair and intense blue eyes. Born and raised in the Maxfelsen Stay, he was over time gaining the trust of Don Raymond, today ostentatious the title of Delegate to the community, execute orders and manage livestock.

His real surname is Ligmanque, but he made Ligman a way to germanize him.
